
Points above the dashed line are more liberal than the baseline model predicts for a party with the same populism and ideology in Argentina in that year.